Religious Freedom and New Partnerships in the Middle East and North Africa

Project Title	Religious Freedom and New Partnerships in the Middle East and North Africa
Project Summary	We are seeking interns to support analytical projects related to the diversification of our partner base in the Middle East and North Africa. The project will center around themes of citizenship, inclusion, and religious freedom.
Country	United States

Project Description

The Religious and Ethnic Minorities Unit at USAID is seeking to expand its new partnership work in the Middle East and North Africa in response to the Executive Order on Advancing International Religious Freedom. Interns will help to develop tools to landscape potential partners, better understand community needs using evidence based tools and analytics, and take direct part in shaping the development of a monitoring and evaluation system for a $50 million portfolio. We are looking for solutions-oriented interns with a passion for inclusion and diversity.

Required Skills or Interests

Skill(s)
Coding
Cultural diplomacy
Data analysis
Data visualization
Design thinking
GIS expertise
Graphic design
Storytelling/blogging/vlogging

Additional Information

Please note that the skills listed encompass a general range of potential interest areas for an intern.

For more information please visit: https://www.usaid.gov/democracy/religious-freedom
The Executive Order on Advancing Religious Freedom: https://www.whitehouse.gov/presidential-actions/executive-order-advancing-international-religious-freedom/
For more information on USAID's Open Data Policy, ADS 579:
https://www.usaid.gov/sites/default/files/documents/1868/579.pdf

Language Requirements

Language Speaking Proficiency Reading Proficiency Importance

Arabic Minimum professional proficiency Minimum professional proficiency Nice to Have